

The Dignity and Sanctity of the Home

*Through wisdom a house is built,
And by understanding it is established;
By knowledge the rooms are filled
With all precious and pleasant riches.
Proverbs 24:3-4*

The first institution that God established was the family. He established divine order in the first home, the Garden of Eden. He gave specific instructions to the first family, Adam and Eve, requiring them to be obedient. Throughout Scripture we can see that God has conferred dignity and sanctity on the institution of the home.

Dignity and Sanctity Defined

Dignity | The word dignity is defined as “the quality or state of being worthy, honored or esteemed, particularly in manner, character or appearance.” Dignity refers to the value of a home both in physical appearance and in the godly character of those who dwell there. A home that has dignity sets standards of order and creativity with the godly characteristics of love, righteousness, servanthood, hospitality, honesty and loyalty.

Sanctity | The word sanctity is defined as “holiness, godliness, a sacred thing.” The sanctity of the home is its purity in heart and purpose—it’s wholeness and holiness in tone and mood. Home is a duet of devotion and worth—devotion to God while valuing one another. Home is a sacred place for the human soul to be recharged, renewed, refreshed and restored.

It Starts at Home

Regardless of your giftings, calling or occupation, or if you are married or single, with or without children, are a young adult or a senior, live in a house with your family, an apartment with friends or a condo with your pet, God has designated women as the primary influencers in the home. As we read about in Proverbs 31:10-31, women are to cultivate loving, joyful and peaceful settings in our homes for the purposes of honoring

God and building godly relationships with others through every thought of our minds, attitude of our hearts, word of our mouths and deed of our hands.

A house becomes a home when people spend time together in it. And, nothing can replace the nurturing environment of a healthy home. When you create an atmosphere of love, joy and peace in your home, then you are making your home one of dignity and sanctity.

Refocus and Rebuild

Society's popular trends should never dictate what you do or don't do in your home. Within the law of the land and under God's law, we have a higher mandate. We must refocus our attention on the worth and value God places on the home.

The home is not just a physical structure where people dwell. It's not just the return address on your mail or the place where you park your car at night. God designated the home to be a central part of our lives. The home is to be a nurturing place where those who live there build healthy relationships with one another, learning and laughing and growing together, and building a sense of identity and community from which our society is formed.

Proverbs 14:1 says, "The wise woman builds her house, But the foolish pulls it down with her hands." As women, we are charged in Scripture to be wise and build our homes because home is where the heart is formed. Our hearts can either be hurt or hardened, or they can be strengthened and made to become secure and sensitive because of what we experience in the home.
